

Dear all

In this week's digest:

- Another session at the EGU General Assembly (Vienna, Austria in April 2023) that may be of interest. Session HS2.3.5 on The application of Bayesian approaches in water quality modelling, decision support and risk analysis. The session, with some modifications, has been running for five years and the varied contributions have been appreciated by a growing community of Bayesian modellers. The deadline for abstract submission is 10 January 2023.
- A hint for booking your accommodation in Darwin now for MODSIM2023, remembering that Darwin will be very busy in July and prices will get expensive. Many accommodation places have generous cancellation policies, they let you cancel without any cost up to even a few days before. So lock in something now, even if you are not 100% sure you will be able to attend. The MODSIM2023 Organising Committee is working to secure room blocks but if you can find something reasonable now we recommend you take it.

If you would like something included in this digest, please email it to office@mssanz.org.au

Kind regards, Karen
